Arquiconsult implements new POS system at Angoalissar.

On October 9th, the new POS system was launched at Angoalissar Luanda's first warehouse (Marimba).

In less than a year Arquiconsult has developed and implemented POS+ at Angoalissar, a project that is of enormous importance in the company's overall transformation process and which is now under development. The next steps are to have this system operational throughout the Luanda region by the end of the year.

What is POS?

POS (Point of Sale) is the system where the process of buying and selling a product takes place and which includes all the services provided to the customer. Various operations are carried out here in a simplified way: returns, customer orders, invoicing, stock management, etc. The benefits of this system for Angoalissar are very important and among them are greater control, efficiency and savings. On the customer side, the speed of the transaction is greater, improving their overall satisfaction.

To help with the implementation of this new phase, Angoalissar has set up a Change Management team, with the aim of facilitating communication, developing training and helping with the transition more effectively, to reduce entropies and optimize the working method.

According to Angoalissar's CEO, Wissam Nesr:

"In order to respond to today's competitive and ever-changing environment, we also need to transform ourselves and optimize the use of our current and future resources. To do this, we need to obtain more accurate information that allows us to make quick and, above all, effective decisions - something that is at the heart of any successful organization or company. This will make it easier and more effective to assess stock levels, manage sales or analyze our customer's buying behavior in order to improve our decision-making process."

"In order to reach and develop our resources and maintain our leadership in the market, we are planning to implement the POS+ system in all Angoalissar warehouses throughout the various regions of Angola. POS+ will provide us with more up-to-date data, which will allow the company to grow, become even more competitive and thus strengthen our position as market leaders. It is in this strategic shift that the company is counting on the participation and contribution of each and every one of you to make this project a success."
